Mussolini, back in Caesar's old

Speaking of old Mussy, the Italian debt settlement is to be dis-

There is a singular coincidence,
as it were, in the spectacle of Ha-

Goddess Pele, as Mauna Loa, a flaming torch, 13,675 feet high, gives man an idea of what this old earth was like when it was being made. Here is a disaster, as yet guiltless of much human blood, which recalls the eruption of Pele
and the destruction of 30,000 lives at St. Pierre, back in 1902.

The story of the frisky Virginia

MAUNA LOA'S LAVA WIPES OUT NATIVE VILLAGE ON COAST

Blazing Rivers the Most Awe-Inspiring Sight the Islanders Recall.

STREAM ENTERS SEA, OCEAN WATERS BOIL

Fountains of Fire Spout 400 Feet High, Above the Level of Crater.

Kona, Hawaii, April 18 (By A. P.).—The village of Hoopuloa, on the southwest shore of the island of Hawaii, was completely wiped out this morning by an avalanche of lava that burst forth from the volcano Mauna Loa. Ten to fifteen homes were engulfed, but there is no report what became of the inhabitants.

Hoopuloa was one of the few typical Hawaiian villages remaining. It comprised a cluster of from ten to fifteen homes of the old Hawaiian style, numbering a population of approximately 100 persons.

A flood of molten rock pouring out from the crater struck the sea at 6:21 a. m., starting the ocean boiling several hundred feet out at sea.

Plunging into the water just south of Hoopuloa, the lava turned in the direction of Kona, filling the bay and completely burying the landing and from ten to fifteen homes located in the vicinity.

All houses and the wharf at Hoopuloa were engulfed under 50 feet of lava, the postoffice being the last building to go. It burst into flames at 8:30 p. m.

Pray to Fire Goddess.

As the streams of lava, which flowed from an 8,000-foot level in approximately four days, approached the ocean Saturday afternoon it split into two branches. Eight hundred feet from the water one stream turned toward Hoopuloa and the other started in the direction of Miloli.

Old Hawaiian Kahuna started incantations in the ancient form of appeal to Pele (a Hawaiian fire goddess associated with the volcano Kilauea) not to destroy their homes any more.

Their appeal failed to stop the flow, as a steady onrush of lava continued its course of destruction.

Army airplanes arrived a few hours after the village was wiped out, but were unable to locate the flow definitely because of the dense steam and smoke. The aviators reported the heat was intense at an elevation of 3,000 feet. Huge clouds of steam hung over the ocean, rising to a height of several hundred feet. As the lava struck the water, tremendous rockets of fire were hurled into the air.

3 in Auto Are Killed When Struck by Train

Harlem, Ga., April 18 (By A. P.).—Three persons were instantly killed at 7:40 o'clock tonight when an automobile in which they were riding was struck at a grade crossing at Sawdust, Ga., 1 mile west of Harlem, by Georgia passenger train No. 9.

The dead: Miss Gladys Thompson, 20, of Harlem, Ga.; T. B. Jones, 22, of McKenney, Va.; Homer East, 22, of Roanoke, Va.

The automobile, a large touring car, was dragged 900 yards and demolished by the train.

6 Workers Entombed By 35-Foot Cave-In

Quincy, Calif., April 18 (By A. P.).—Six men, entombed behind a 35-foot cave-in in the Grizzly creek tunnel of the Feather Mountain Power Co., western side of Bucks mountain, 30 miles from here, were believed dead tonight by fellow employees who were seeking to rescue them.

The cave-in occurred between 9 p. m. and midnight last night, but was not discovered until this morning when the early shift reported for work. Rescuers expect to reach the buried men tomorrow morning.

Serum to Combat All Bacteria Toxins Seen

Chicago, Ill., April 18 (By A. P.).—A serum which will guard against all diseases in which bacteria toxins are present, such as diphtheria, and pneumonia, may become one of the weapons of medical science in the near future.

Three scientists, Dr. Arthur Locke of the University of Chicago, and Dr. E. F. Hirsch, and Miss Edna Ruth Main of St. Luke's hospital, are seeking to apply the theory which they have evolved after long experimentation.

Serums now in use are effective for only one disease, Dr. Locke explains, and many difficulties result. Valuable time is often lost determining even the general disease to be dealt with.

A serum effective against all bacteria toxins could be applied at once, he points out.

TURKEY CALLS TROOPS IN FEAR OF MUSSOLINI

London Hears Rumors That Italy and Greece Are to Act Together.

DOUBLE ATTACK IS SEEN

Constantinople, April 18 (By A. P.).—Though rumors have been current of a possible conflict between Turkey and Italy, the Constantinople newspapers refuse to credit the suggestion that Italy would make an unprovoked attack on Turkey.

They express satisfaction, however, that the government is taking all necessary precautions.

There is considerable excitement among the people because of the urgent action of the Turkish recruiting bureau in calling up the classes aged 21 and 22 years, as well as all reserve men of the ages of 23 to 26. Ankara advises that every one has been following Mussolini's voyage closely and the general political situation, and that Turkey has not failed to make proper preparations.

London, April 18 (By A. P.).—Rumors have been printed in the London newspapers of late attributing to Premier Mussolini a design to enlist Greek support for his imperial ambitions and alleging that Greece has made long credit contracts with Italy for supplies of rifles, tanks and other munitions, which could only be used against Turkey, in Thrace.

The idea underlying these rumors is that in the event of Mussolini's taking action in Asia Minor, President Pangalos of Greece would attack Thrace.

THRONGS SEE FATAL LEAP FROM AIRPLANE

Man Who Volunteers to Do Stunt Falls on Back and Is Killed.

Vero Beach, Fla., April 18 (By A. P.).—A leap from an airplane into the ocean as a stunt in an air circus this afternoon killed Jewell W. Bell, 24, of Louisville, a volunteer performer. Several thousand persons on shore witnessed the accident.

Bell dropped from the lower wing of the plane which was driven by Roy A. Hearn, stunt pilot, and fell 50 feet into the water.

He struck the surface on his back and ricocheted about twenty feet. The body did not appear on the surface again. Efforts to locate it were unsuccessful.

Bell is said to have had no experience as an aviator. When he learned that a friend was to make a parachute drop, Bell was said to have asked to be allowed to do a trick, saying he once dived into the Ohio river from a fast train.

Crew of 7 Rescued From Sinking Trawler

New York, April 18 (By A. P.).—Seven men were rescued early today from the sinking trawler Pionita off Montauk, Long island, by the steamship City of Atlanta, bound from Savannah, Ga., to Boston.

Capt. L. G. Dalzell, of the rescuing ship, in his radio report to the Savannah line, operators of the City of Atlanta did not give the cause of the trawler's distress.

"Rescued seven men, crew of sinking trawler Pionita of New York," read his message. "Trawler abandoned with all lights burning. Capt. reports she will sink in half hour."

WOMAN LURES 11TH GANG FEUD VICTIM BY CALL ON PHONE

Max Goldberg Shot Down
by Two Gunmen in New York Alley.

BULLETS PIERCE BRAIN; ASSASSINS GET AWAY

Murder Last in Series in War of "Kid Dropper" and
"Little Augies."

New York, April 18 (By A. P.).—The eleventh victim fell today in the three-year warfare between the "Kid Dropper" and "Little Augie," gangs of lower East Side gunmen.

A woman was the cause of the shooting that started the feud three years ago and a woman was involved in the death of the eleventh victim, Max Goldberg, who was shot down by two gunmen early today, as he was answering a telephone call in a hallway outside his restaurant in Orchard street.

Police, checking up the telephone call and finding that it was made by a woman, were convinced that she timed the call as a lure to draw Goldberg from his restaurant, so he would be a fair target for the gunmen. Two bullets pierced Goldberg's brain. The gunmen escaped.

Partner Was Slain.
Goldberg was a partner of Meyer Albert, of the "Little Augie" gang, who was killed in Attorney street last year.

The warfare started in 1923 when Louis Schwartzman, "The Midget," was killed as he sat with his sweetheart on the steps of his home in Rutgers street. Police ascribed the cause of this shooting to the fact that "The Midget," a member of the "Little Augie" gang, had stolen the sweetheart of Jack Kaplan, "the Kid Dropper."

Kaplan was arrested for the shooting, but was discharged. As he was leaving court, accompanied by detectives, he was shot down by Cohen of the "Little Augie." Cohen is now serving a life term for the murder.

Murders of members of the two gangs occurred intermittently after Kaplan's death.

Abandoned Seaplane Provides a Mystery

Orange, Tex., April 18 (By A. P.).—Mystery surrounds the finding of an abandoned two-passenger seaplane containing a quantity of molded food and tools on the Sabine lake shore near here by O. S. Sydnies, of Sabine, while he was on a fishing trip. A map of Louisiana found in the ship bore penciled conversation relating to selection of a landing place that had evidently been exchanged by the plane's occupants during a storm. The plane contained nothing which would identify it or its owners.

President of Greece Drops Dictatorship

Athens, April 18 (By A. P.).—Gen. Pangalos was installed as president of Greece at the Cathedral today. He ordered the liberation of all political prisoners and journalists accused of attempted sedition, including M. Papanastasiou, former premier, and Gen. Condylis, former minister of war and others who were sent into exile.

From tomorrow, Gen. Pangalos announced, he will relinquish all his dictatorial rights, which he assumed early in January of this year.

Men Save Bible Class From Women's Invasion

Kansas City, Mo., April 18 (By A. P.).—Down-trodden man, having lost his rights at the corner barbershop and other hitherto exclusive rendezvous, was about to give way to the fairer sex at the world's largest men's Bible class, conducted at Ivanhoe Masonic temple here by Dr. D. J. Evans, pastor of the First Baptist church.

An exclusion order today saved the day, however, and no longer may women visitors usurp the seats designed for business men.

For many Sundays, it was explained by E. E. Amick, president of the class, a hundred or so seats were taken by women visitors, and as gentle hints availed not, the exclusion order was adopted. An attendance of 2,000 men has been maintained for nearly three years. Women visitors were not included in the count.

RIFF ARMISTICE PARLEY ENDS IN DISAGREEMENT

Peace Talk Is Off Indefinitely; Spanish Demand Krim
Must Be Exiled.

NATIVES ARE GIVEN 3 DAYS

Camp Berteaux, Morocco, April 18 (By A. P.).—The armistice conference broke up this evening after a seven hours' sitting, with the French, Spanish and Rifian delegates in complete disagreement.

The opening of the official conference at Oujda, whereby it was hoped to terminate the Moroccan strife and bring peace to the land, has been postponed, without date. This conference was to have been held tomorrow.

The Rifians decline to permit French and Spanish troops to advance 7 kilometers along the front as a military guarantee of good faith and also object to the proposed terms for the exchange of prisoners.

The French and Spanish delegations have granted the Rifians three days' delay for definite acceptance or refusal of the terms offered, and it is still hoped that a resumption of the war may be avoided.

It is learned on good authority that the Spaniards insisted not only that Abd-el-Krim depart from the Rif, but that he be not permitted to reside in any Moslem country.

The Rifian delegates stoutly objected, arguing that this was totally different from the original terms submitted to them.

Macao Strikers Fire On Portuguese Troops

Hongkong, April 18 (By A. P.).—Chinese strike pickets stationed on the outskirts of Macao today fired upon and wounded several Portuguese soldiers stationed on garrison duty. The Portuguese returned the fire, whereupon the Chinese retreated to authorities at Canton.

Auto Hits Light Pole; 3 Men Electrocutd

Philadelphia, Pa., April 18 (By A. P.).—Three men were electrocuted and three badly burned today when their automobile crashed into a high voltage electric light pole, causing a live wire to come in contact with their car. One of the injured was so seriously hurt that physicians fear he will die. Two of those killed were Charles Morris and Daniel Boyle, the third had not been definitely identified. All were Philadelphians.

5 LIVES ARE LOST, 3 OTHERS MAY DIE IN CHICAGO FIRES

Oil Thrown Into Stove at Birthday Party Is Fatal to 2.

PLUNGING MAN HURLS FIREMEN OFF LADDER

Drugs and Needles Found at Scene of Second Blaze; Rescuers Attacked.

Chicago, April 18 (By A. P.).—Five persons are dead, three can not live and twelve others are in hospitals nursing injuries here today as a result of two fires that terminated revelry carried into the early hours of Sunday morning.

A gallon can of kerosene exploded at the climax of a birthday party, showering the guests with liquid fire and fatally injuring four of them.

A four-story brick building was swept by flames which originated in a drinking party. Three occupants of this building were killed, a fireman fatally injured and six others were rushed to the hospital.

Drugs Are Found.
Quantities of drugs and hypodermic needles were found at the scene of the second fire, and Patrick Roche, Federal narcotic agent, started an investigation after declaring it had been found to be the headquarters of a number of narcotic addicts.

Some of the tenants of the building appeared to be dazed, according to firemen and policemen, and fought their rescuers before they could be taken to safety. One 200-pound man jumped from the third story and struck a ladder on which firemen were carrying a victim to the ground. It snapped, causing one of the deaths and fatal injuries to a fireman.

Oil Thrown on Fire.
At the birthday party, Mrs. Frank Smagaczak hurled the contents of a gallon can of kerosene into a stove when the room grew cool. Ten guests at the table nearly were deluged with the burning liquid as it exploded. They were rushed to a hospital where two of them died.

Two others were found to be burned so seriously they can not live and a fifth, Frank Smagaczak will be permanently blinded if he recovers.

His wife, who caused the explosion, escaped uninjured.

Joseph Jamison, proprietor of the burned brick building admitted, according to the police, that he had been selling whisky for the last six months.

CAPITAL HAS SNOW, FOLLOWED BY RAIN

Churchgoers Are Pelted by Flakes Reminiscent of January.

Washington's spring weather continued yesterday to maintain its touch of winter. Although the cherry blossoms have bloomed and faded, and the first robin has been forgotten, churchgoers yesterday morning were pelted with snowflakes that would have done credit to January.

In the afternoon, the snow turned to a drizzling rain that threatened to make Washington a blue law town as far as Sunday baseball was concerned. Other sports suffered as a result of the inclement weather.

The cherry blossoms, already drooping, were hard hit by the combined snow and rain. Many who had planned to spend their Sunday afternoon viewing the blossoms were forced to stay at home. For the benefit of the few who did brave the elements the reflecting fountain in the mirror pool near Lincoln Memorial was turned on in the afternoon. The fountain was not at its best, however, as there was no sunlight to color its spray.

Neutralization Plan Is Favored at Arica

Arica, Chile, April 18 (By A. P.).—Strong sentiment in favor of neutralization of the disputed provinces of Tacna and Arica developed in plebiscite circles here after Secretary Kellogg's proposals to Chile and Peru became known.

Chile's attitude regarding the proposals is as yet unknown here and the Chilean delegation also is not desirous of expressing any views so as to not hamper its government in reaching a decision.

3 ON WHALER DIE OF GAS IN TANK; 3 ARE RESCUED

Of Five Who Investigate Long Absence of One, Two Are Not Removed in Time.

OTHERS BADLY BURNED

Norfolk, Va., April 18 (By A. P.).—Three members of the crew of the Norwegian whaling steamer Sir James Clark Ross were asphyxiated in an oil tank and three others narrowly escaped a similar fate last Wednesday while the ship was several hundred miles at sea, it became known with the arrival here of the whaler. One of the dead men was a son of Chief Engineer Svendsen, of the steamer.

According to Capt. Thorstensen, young Svendsen entered one of the tanks used for boiling whale fat for the purpose of cleaning it. When he failed to return two other members of the crew entered the tank to investigate. They, too, failed to return.

Three other men, one of whom was Svendsen's father, then were lowered into the tank by means of ropes. They were almost immediately overcome and were hauled out hurriedly, but not until they had suffered severe burns as a result of inhaling the deadly fumes.

The bodies are being taken to New York on the steamer.

The Sir James Clark Ross left here last September and has been in the whaling grounds in Ross sea, south of New Zealand, since last November. She had in her crew 164 men. The season was declared unusually successful, the catch of whales totaling 532, which netted about 35,000 barrels of oil, said to be valued at about $1,200,000.

5,000 German Girls Parade Bare-Legged

Berlin, April 18 (By A. P.).—A great parade celebrating the opening "health week" today included 5,000 bare-legged girls and young women striding along rhythmically in their gymnastic suits, sleeveless waists and black or white cotton pants, ending three or four inches above the knee.

Thousands of women in ordinary walking costumes were also in the procession, and tens of thousands of young men and boys in sleeveless tunics and short breeches.

DRY GUNS TO OPEN FIRE ON DEFENSIVE BEFORE COMMITTEE

Prohibitionists Will Use Star
Testimony of Offset Week of "Wet" Hearings.

WHEELER EXPECTED TO TALK ON STAND

Senator Reed Proves Stumbling Block in Hearing to Aid Forces by Interruptions.

By ALBERT W. FOX.

This is to be the big star week for the drys before the Senate committee investigating prohibition. Unless their plans miscarry, they expect to nullify whatever gains the modificationists made through their testimony and then assume a vigorous offensive and demand that the Congress put enough power and money behind the Volstead law to meet the challenge that it is unenforceable.

In other words, the dry plan of campaign is to accept the statement of the modificationists that the people want a change. The change that the people want, according to the drys, is a change for stricter observance and better enforcement of the Volstead law. When the Senate committee hearings were first announced, Wayne B. Wheeler, the czar of prohibition, said the wetts would use the hearings for propaganda and that he would give them more propaganda of a different sort than that they bargained for. He now has approximately fourteen hours of testimony left to make good his threat.

Wheeler to Testify.

Mr. Wheeler himself will take the stand about the middle of the week and he is expected to be the star witness for the defense. Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Antislavery League's legislative board, will also appear. Mrs. Mabel Willbrandt, in charge of prosecuting violations of the prohibition laws, and Gen. Andrews, in charge of prohibition enforcement, will be important witnesses. Prominent prohibition leaders and church dignitaries will have an opportunity to testify before the star dry witnesses take the stand.

However, the drys are ready for the decisive week and say the hearings may prove a blessing in disguise if they lead to stricter enforcement. The only disturbing factor from the dry standpoint is the presence of Senator Reed, of Missouri, in the committee room. If the committee could see its way clear to hear important dry witnesses when Senator Reed had to do with prohibition enforcement, the problem of getting dry testimony in without interruption would be materially assisted.

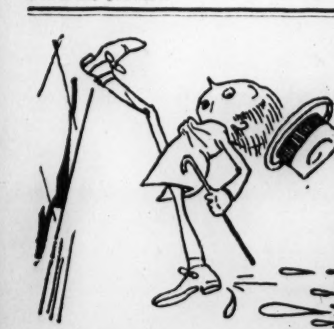

Andrews Will Answer
Only to His Superiors

New York, April 18 (By A. P.).—Brig. Gen. Lincoln C. G. Andrews, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and director of prohibition enforcement, will answer only to Secretary Mellon and President Coolidge concerning his recent testimony before the Senate prohibition investigating committee, he said here today.

Gen. Andrews, who has been under fire from the drys because of his testimony, came to New York for the week-end, he said, to escape persistent, unofficial questioning in Washington. Before returning to Washington today Gen. Andrews said: "My visit had nothing to do with local prohibition enforcement conditions. I will return to New York later in the week. I will not answer criticisms of any part of my testimony."

Recital at Congressional Club.

A joint recital was given for the members of the Congressional Country Club at the club last night. The entertainers were Louis D. Thompson, lyric tenor, formerly with Elsie Janis; Miss Maitland LeGrande Thompson, dramatic reader, and Mrs. Elizabeth Gardner Coombs, pianist.

Bishop Freeman Dedicates Pulpit

The progress made by the rector, the Rev. J. J. Quigley, and the congregation of the Episcopal Church of the Transfiguration, was commemorated last night by the Rt. Rev. James E. Freeman, bishop of Washington, who made his annual visitation and confirmed 30 persons last night at the church.

Bishop Freeman dedicated a pulpit and other gifts that had been presented to the church. He preached a sermon on the power Christianity should have in the daily life.

Church Improvements and New Building Sites.

The Pan-Presbyterian campaign for $175,000, which will be conducted in the 39 churches of the Washington presbytery this week, was outlined at the morning and evening services of the local churches yesterday by the pastors, and many visiting ministers.

The fund is sought for the purchase of new church building sites in the growing suburban sections, the improving of several city churches, and the carrying on of a three-year program of evangelism, Sunday school and young people's work and church finance.

The Rev. George G. Doney, of Los Angeles, Calif., is campaign director and Dr. Charles Wood is chairman of the executive extension committee. Mrs. W. W. Day and Mrs. H. S. Irwin will direct the campaign among the Presbyterian women and the Rev. J. R. Duffield is executive secretary of the committee.

2,666 Padlock Cases In 6 Months of 1925

(By the Associated Press.)
"Padlock" injunctions were issued against 2,666 establishments between last July 1 and January 1, the Department of Justice disclosed in a formal statement yesterday, which quoted two United States district attorneys as commending the law as one of the most potent of enforcement weapons.

The padlock cases were proportionately greater during the period than during the preceding fiscal year ended July 1, last, when 4,313 places were closed.

D. A. R. LEADERSHIP IN RETURN TO OLD IDEALS IS REQUESTED

of America does not reside in Washington nor in the halls of legislation, but public sentiment is made in the sacred confines of the homes of America.

Bishop Freeman then emphasized to his listeners that laws are not inoperative because of a lack of power to enforce them. Such viewpoint was "blasphemy" said the bishop.

"It is the moral let-down of the homes of America which is responsible for the condition," insisted the Bishop, "the great question is, how strong is the individual capacity to make operative the laws of America and to maintain the moral ideals of the nation."

Urges Return to Old Ways.
"The great problem for you Daughters of the American Revolution is to lead the return of the American home to wholesome ways, old ways of decency and refinement and high spiritual and moral ideals."

"I believe there is enough power in your great nation to regenerate the ways of the individual and social habits of America. I have unflinching confidence in the wisdom and sagacity of American women to exercise a determining influence in the future which will lead us back to the wholesome ways by which we came to our greatness and our power."

Last night was devoted to informal gatherings of the delegations, and reunions of veteran delegates to the Continental Congresses. Peacock alley in the Willard, as usual, was the main gathering place of the delegates, which by 9 o'clock had become so crowded that it was difficult to move through the crowd of women congregated there.

Eighteen hundred delegates had registered at the booths, which will be kept open at the auditorium, by 6 o'clock last night. This is usually a large number to arrive so early, and it is thought that the attendance of delegates and alternates will even exceed the estimated number of 4,000 predicted earlier in the week. Many of the State delegations arrived by special trains, and for the most part were quartered together at various hotels.

Political conferences were in progress during the day and evening. Mrs. Charles White Nash, State regent of New York, who is a presidential candidate, came in with the New York delegation and her adherents at once became busy on her behalf. At the same time

Notes of D. A. R. Congress

Two former presidents general, Mrs. George Thacher Guernsey, of Independence, Kans., and Mrs. George Maynard Minor, of Connecticut, are attending the D. A. R. congress.

Mrs. W. F. Root, State vice regent of Vermont, is serving on the credential committee.

Mrs. A. D. Frisbie and Miss Florence Hull are representing the Cambridge, N. Y., chapter.

Mrs. Lyman Holden, a member of the Vermont delegation, has just returned from Florida where she has been spending the winter. Mr. Holden will be one of interested groups of husbands of D. A. R. delegates who are attending the congress. Mr. and Mrs. Holden will return to their home in Braintree, Vt., after the congress adjourns.

The delegates regard it as very fitting that Mrs. Eleanor Washington Howard, the last member of the Washington family to be born at Mount Vernon, lead the pilgrimage of the entire society to Mount Vernon on Saturday to place wreaths on the tomb of George Washington and Martha Washington.

The annual pilgrimage to Mount Vernon was first arranged by Mrs. George Maynard Minor, when she was president general. Before that time, the delegates went any time they could between the sessions, and a committee of the society went alone to place the wreath. Now it is a scheduled ceremony on the program of the society each year. The former French Ambassador and Mme. Jules Jusserand always made one of the party on the pilgrimage and when Marshal Joffre came to America he waited to go to Mount Vernon until he could accompany the members of the D. A. R.

Miss Mary Boyce Temple, regent of the Bonny Kate chapter of Knoxville, Tenn., has served in many important posts in the society and while she was State regent the State organization rendered conspicuous service to the country in marking the historic trails of the State, especially the famous Boone trail. The Bonny Kate chapter is represented to the congress by Mrs. S. M. Arnell, delegate; Mrs. E. T. Sanford, Mrs. L. D. Tyson, Mrs. W. S. Nash, Mrs. George Harrison, Mrs. Fred Blackburn, Mrs. Guy Dorst as alternates. Mrs. Herbert Sanford, of the house committee from Tennessee, and Miss Elizabeth Sanford and Miss Eva Nash are the Tennessee delegates.

Mrs. David M. Reed, wife of Senator Reed, and Mrs. George Wharton Pepper, wife of Senator Pepper, will give a tea on Wednesday afternoon in honor of the Pennsylvania delegation.

Another District of Columbia woman who has held many offices in the local and national society is Mrs. Belle Merrill Draper, who is an expert parliamentarian and generalist. Mrs. Draper is one of the leaders in the National Society of the Descendants of Signers of the Declaration of Independence and will be a delegate to the annual meeting in Independence hall, Philadelphia, July 4.

Effected in Bottling Plant's Office and Store.

HOME IS ROBBED BY THIEF

After leaving the bottling company's office, the burglars are believed to have gone next door to the store of F. Nixon Brewer, 211 Seventh street, and ransacked the office. Nothing was missing, however.

Mrs. Ella Dawson, of the Iowa apartments, told police that she either lost or there had been stolen from her between the Union station and her home a purse containing a check for $144 and $11 in cash.

Special to The Washington Post.
Buffalo, N. Y., April 18.—One month to the day after his arrest in New York Richard Reese Whitmore, "the candy kid," and famous Baltimore bandit leader, goes on trial tomorrow before Supreme Court Justice Thomas Noonan for the slaying of Louis P. Yarrington and Charles W. Clifford.

Yarrington and Clifford, both married men, were guards for the Marine Trust Co. On the morning of last October 29 these men, with John H. Meyers, were carrying two bags of money, one containing $93,000 and the other $24,000, from the Marine Trust Co. to the bank of Buffalo. A band of six men, armed with revolvers, met them at the bank door. The hold-up men fired. Yarrington died instantly. Clifford, a few hours later in a hospital, the bandits made off with the larger bag of loot.

"These murders can not go unpunished," District Attorney Guy B. Moore, of Erie county, said today.

"I feel sure that the evidence I have in my possession will send Whitmore to the electric chair."

Baltimore Charge Remains.

Even if the State fails to convict him there, Whitmore's little hour is running out its sand.

In Baltimore he is wanted for the murder of an aged prison guard in the Maryland State penitentiary, from which he escaped a year ago after serving only 20 days of a sixteen-year sentence.

And in the confessions of two of his pals, Baltimore Willie Unkelbach and Tony Paladino, he stands accused of three other murders, all within the last year.

As a prisoner, Whitmore is sure and morose. The Buffalo police are taking extreme precautions against suicide. He is shifted to a different cell each day. His belt and suspenders have been taken away from him. He is not allowed a knife or fork, but eats with a wooden spoon.

Shots of Dry Officers
Stir Chevy Chase Man

Charging that prohibition agents endanger the lives of children and residents of Chevy Chase by racing at a high rate of speed through the streets of the community and by shooting promiscuously at suspected runners, C. H. Warrington, 12 Oxford street, Chevy Chase, Md., said last night that he intended to write letters of protest to Gen. Lincoln C. Andrews and other prohibition officials.

Warrington said residents of Chevy Chase are in arms against prohibition agents who, he charged, are using the community as a battleground to war against bootleggers. Yesterday afternoon Warrington said two high-powered automobiles, evidently occupied by runners and prohibition agents, raced by his home. Several shots were fired during the chase, he said. Local police said that they knew nothing of a bootleg chase in that community.

ATTACK UPON WILLIAMS' MEDICAL PLEA PLANNED

Judge Advocate Would Like to Refute Evidence as to Hexyl-Resorcinol.

CASE TO CLOSE TODAY

San Diego, Calif., April 18 (By A. P.).—Whether Col. Alexander S. Williams, of the marines, was intoxicated on the night he gave a dinner party in honor of Brig. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, former Philadelphia director of safety, will be argued here tomorrow by opposing counsel who listened all last week to the conflicting versions of guests at the party.

Gen. Butler, guest of honor, testified that the colonel was "full" at the dinner party, and so drunk he staggered later in the evening in the public rooms of the Hotel del Coronado.

Other guests, officers of the regiment Col. Williams commanded until his arrest on Gen. Butler's charge, told the military court that the colonel appeared slightly under the influence of liquor but may have been merely ill.

The defense contends Col. Williams was dizzy from the effects of hexyl-resorcinol, a drug prescribed by his physician for a chronic disorder. Five doctors were called to the stand to tell the court what might happen to one who thoughtlessly took hexyl-resorcinol before meals instead of afterward, as directed.

Despite the court's lack of interest in further talk of hexyl-resorcinol, the judge advocate said today he might press for permission to introduce "certain information" he has found which he says refutes the testimony of defense experts.

If the court should grant such permission it is not expected the hexyl-resorcinol rebuttal will delay the opening of arguments which probably will be concluded by tomorrow night.

New York, April 18 (By A. P.).—American delegates to the world's convocation of Christian Endeavor societies in London this summer will have to travel across the Atlantic in a "wet" ship because of inability to obtain booking on an American vessel. The Rev. Dr. Daniel A. Colored Catholics Hear Dr. Guilday

Dr. Peter Guilday, of Catholic university, speaking at the annual dinner of the Knights of St. John, colored Catholic organization, in the auditorium of the Church of the Good Shepherd last night, warned his hearers against association with any group endeavoring to disturb the peace or harmony of the community. He declared that the modern tendency toward irreverence for law is entirely outside of the church.

"Modern America," he said, "is going mad with an inordinate love for pleasure, trying vainly to enjoy itself, instead of seeking joy in the pursuit of religion." The Rev. Lawrence Landgrin, of Baltimore, was celebrant of the vesper, assisted by the Rev. F. M. W. Schneeweiss, the Rev. Daniel Rice, a deacon program by Alexander, of Baltimore, and M. E. Hartigan, of Boston.

To Republicans Urged

States' rights were discussed by Karl F. Phillips, commissioner of conciliation of the Department of Labor, before the National Women's Political Club, at the residence of Mrs. M. L. Smith, 1735 Ninth street last night. He urged adherence of negroes to the Republican party as a bulwark of political strength, and opposition to repeal of any constitutional amendment.

Other speakers were Riehl B. Lemus, of Boston; W. L. Jones, of Oklahoma; E. L. Patton, of Mississippi; and J. E. Vaughn, of North Carolina. A musical and literary program was furnished by Mrs. Edna French, Mrs. Mae J. Richardson and W. E. Lew.

Brushing Alone Won't Save Your Teeth

Would You Drink
from a Poisoned Well?

You May be Doing it Now without Knowing it!

THAT is practically what millions are unconsciously doing daily. There is a constant, steady flow of poison into the systems of millions who have Pyorrhea and other serious gum diseases and do not know it. You may be one of these!

You may have teeth that seem sound and give no pain. You may use a tooth brush and a dentifrice daily, but unless your gums are free of germ-laden mucus and have good healthy blood circulating through their tissues, some insidious disorder of the mouth may be pouring poison into your system.

Dentists Urge Massage

For years dentists have recommended daily massage (rubbing) of the gums with the finger. But until recently, massage was never 100% efficient because of the slippery, germ-laden coating on the gums, called mucus. Now GUM RUB is a new and totally different preparation perfected by an eminent dental authority, makes it possible to remove every trace of this germ-carrying mucus.

Having first thoroughly cleansed your gums, GUM RUB then starts its real work of causing friction between the gums and the finger. After a few minutes of rubbing with GUM RUB, a perfectly natural circulation of healthy blood sets up in your gum tissues.

Begin Using Gum Rub Today

Regardless of your age, you should use GUM RUB every time you brush your teeth. It quickly kills Pyorrhea, is pleasant to the taste, and makes and keeps your gums and mouth healthy. The quick results obtained with GUM RUB are amazing and permanent. GUM RUB aids nature without resort to dangerous medication, hence its effectiveness is lasting.

Do you wear a plate? GUM RUB will prove a blessing. Try it today!

POLICE IN Y. M. C. A. OUST ARMY OFFICERS

Called When Col. Allyn and Others Oppose Dr. Cadman Assailing Training.

New York, April 18 (By A. P.).—Col. Robert Starr Allyn, commander of the 107th coast artillery, Lieut. Col. Howard L. Compton, and several other officers were compelled by a policeman today to leave the Bedford branch of the Y. M. C. A. while the Rev. Dr. S. Purkes Cadman was speaking against military training in colleges.

The army officers objected to certain remarks. When one of them started to heckle Dr. Cadman, an usher ordered music to drown him out. Other ushers summoned a policeman.

Later Col. Allyn said that the minister "is unfair in attacking our national defense policies and at the same time protesting against army officers saying anything in favor of it in rebuttal."

ITALIAN DEBT PACT AND BUILDINGS BILL TO BE UP FOR VOTE

Two Important Measures Will Be Settled by Congress During Coming Week.

NINE FEDERAL JUDGES
MAY BE AUTHORIZED

House Will Start Survey of Conditions Under Prohibition Rule in America.

(By the Associated Press.)
The Italian debt settlement and the $165,000,000 public buildings bill—two of the major problems before Congress—are to be disposed of this week.

The Senate will vote on the Italian debt question at 4 p. m. Wednesday, and administration leaders are confident that they can muster the necessary majority to concur in the House action approving the agreement reached between the American and Italian debt commissions.

The public buildings bill, the first to be considered by Congress in thirteen years, is expected to come to a vote in the Senate tomorrow or Tuesday. It carries $135,000,000 for postoffices and customs houses throughout the country, including those already authorized and those which the Treasury and Postoffice Departments may approve.

The remaining $30,000,000 is for buildings in the District of Columbia to house departments now located in rented structures or temporary wartime buildings which have been described by proponents of the bill as "firetraps."

New Judges Considered.
While the Senate is disposing of these two measures, the House will devote its attention largely to miscellaneous bills on the calendar, including that for twelve additional Federal district judges in nine States, which is to be taken up Thursday.

Prohibition and farm relief legislation will be the dominant subjects before the committees of the two houses. While the dyes are being replaced the presentation of their case before the Senate judiciary subcommittee, the House committee on the control of the alcoholic liquor traffic will start a survey of conditions under the prohibition law.

Both the Senate and House agriculture committees will begin consideration of an administration farm relief bill presented at the instance of Secretary Jardine and designed to replace the corn belt farm relief measure which the Senate committee has attached as a "rider" to the administration cooperative marketing bill.

The joint committee on the disposition of Muscle Shoals will complete its work this week and prepare a report to Congress on April 26. This report is to include recommendations on the future of the plant, which the committee has received for all or part of the government's wartime plant on the Tennessee river.

Trade Commission Drops Complaints

(By Associated Press.)
With Commissioners Nugent and Thompson dissenting, the Federal trade commission has dismissed three additional complaints under agreed stipulations to abandon trade practices complained of, but without making public the names of the companies involved.

In each case the respondent agreed that if the practices were resumed, the stipulations might be used as evidence against him.

The dissenting commissioners held that the complaints should be issued and the cases tried "in order that the public might be informed of the unfair practices" and that "law abiding competitors be benefited by increased trade."

GROUP LAUDS OFFICERS ACCUSED OF LARCENY

200 Hyattsville Citizens Organize Prince Georges Law Enforcement League.

GOV. RITCHIE IS ASSAILED

Aroused by the alleged lawlessness of Prince Georges county, more than 200 citizens of Hyattsville, Md., yesterday gathered in the new Masonic hall and formed what they called a law enforcement league.

A resolution was adopted commending the county police and the county grand jury on charges of larceny in connection with the liquor raids in southern Maryland, and especially Mrs. Retta D. Morris, who has tried many liquor and gambling cases recently.

K. J. Morris, husband of the justice of the peace, stated that if the people of the county did not wholeheartedly support his wife he would insist that she resign her position. Mr. Morris declared that one woman alone could not handle the situation.

Gov. Ritchie was charged with having failed to protect the citizens of the State Law Enforcement league, for his "wet" attitude, and she advocated the election of a "dry" governor next autumn. The Rev. J. Edgar Smith, of Landover, Md., was elected chairman of the league and it was voted to hold the next meeting Sunday, May 2.

Forest Fire Destroys Barn and Dwelling

Special to The Washington Post.
Seaford, Del., April 18.—A forest fire on the farm of James H. James, in Broad Creek Hundred, destroyed thousands of dollars damage yesterday and last night. A barn containing feed and an unoccupied dwelling, the only building on the place, were destroyed. James and neighboring farmers fought the fire for six hours before getting it under control and preventing it from leaping across to a large forest of old growth timber.

WALL STREET GOSSIP

New York, April 18 (By A. P.).—The Magazine of Wall Street announced today the purchase of the National Financial News, together with plans for consolidating the two publications under the name of the former, A. Newton Plummer, owner and publisher of the News, will retire from the publishing field to devote his time to other business interests. Richard D. Wyckoff will be publisher and editor of the enlarged magazine.

Low prices of stocks are increasing the shareholders of several representative corporations. It is shown in a survey by Dominick & Dominick, members of the New York Stock Exchange. Ten companies whose stocks are widely traded yesterday reported an increase in stockholders during February and March, four reported an increase during the quarter-year period, with no reduction in the number of stockholders belonging to Mr. James, who also reported a decrease for a period of eighteen months and evidently had nothing to do with the present market.

The companies reporting an increase were American Telephone & Telegraph Co., 2,531 between February 1 and March 15; Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, 2,007 during March; New York Central railroad, 3,241 between February 1 and March 26; Studebaker Corporation, 2,000 between January 1 and April 7; Baltimore & Ohio railroad, 445 during February; American Express Co., 2,534 in the first quarter; Standard Oil Co., of New Jersey, 18,055 between November 25 and February 25; Eastman Kodak Co., approximately 500 in the first quarter of 1926.

Moody's Weekly Review of financial conditions says that notwithstanding the more optimistic sentiment, the lowest price level yet touched this year in the stock market is about 17 points above the bottom of the March reaction of 1925, and 19 points above the extreme peak of the bull movement of 1919, and 25 points above the bottom of the upward swing of 1922.

The erratic movements of call money are characteristic of a trade reaction. "Our expectations of a major upward swing in bond prices beginning around midsummer or a little later, based on the apprehensions of capital, the present reductions of operating costs and the absence of any present or prospective impairment of our industrial machinery."

There is nothing in sight to justify expectations of any imminent improvement in zinc conditions throughout the world, in the opinion of A. J. M. Sharpe, foreign correspondent of the American Zinc Institute. "The safety valve is probably the fact that the present selling price in Europe is little, if anything, above the current cost of production. Indeed some works badly placed, are for the time being operated at a loss." Despite the pronounced fall in St. Louis, Mr. Sharpe reports that market has continued to have little or no influence on the London metal exchange.

BUSINESS AID SEEN IN CHEAPER CREDIT. REPORTED PLANNED

Federal Reserve Squeezing Money Assistance Out of Speculation.

INCREASE OF IMPORTS
CALLED HELPFUL SIGN

Car-Loading Data Shows the Freight Movement Up to That of Year Ago.

New York, April 17 (By the Associated Press.)—Unsettled conditions in most of the securities and commodities markets last week were accepted in many quarters as signs of a corresponding unsettlement in actual business. These views were supported by reports from some of the basic industries, including a smaller volume of new orders for finished steel, a recession from the recent high rate of steel production, talk of curtailment of output by some motor manufacturers and the failure of retail sales to keep pace with dealers' shipments.

Minor upheavals took place in the rubber and sugar trades, where growing uneasiness about each country over a series of unfavorable developments. The publication of the February output greatly exceeded shipments, was accompanied by reports that manufacturers were considering further price cuts to stimulate business. At the same time stocks of crude rubber were said to be accumulating rapidly, and a sharp decline in prices took place.

Cuba to Restrict Sugar.
As a means of improving unsatisfactory business in the sugar industry, action was taken in Cuba to restrict the output by 10 per cent, to regulate grinding and to adopt legislation designed to prevent overproduction in the next two crops.

The advantages of these measures were generally admitted, resulting in some stiffening of sugar prices, but considerable uneasiness was created in the industry and fears were aroused that curtailment of these companies would be impaired.

Renewed attention was directed to the possibility of foreign commerce by publication of the third consecutive monthly statement of foreign trade to show an import surplus. In view of the United States' position as a creditor nation, the States' excess of imports over exports of $124,100,000 occasioned little concern and was even viewed in some quarters as a favorable development. European goods, it was indicated, were seeking a more or less urgent outlet in the American market rather than being attracted here by any rise in prices.

Publication of the weekly Federal reserve figures on brokerage loans indicated that the process of squeezing credit from the speculative markets was making good headway simultaneously with the continued decline in stock prices. The net result, it is expected, will be to supply cheaper credit to trade and industry. Already reports have gained circulation that the Federal reserve board, having checked extravagant speculation in the securities markets by raising the discount rates, were considering a reduction in the hope of stimulating business. Financial circles, however, do not look for a change until the need becomes more urgent.

The weekly mercantile reviews reported that stocks of imported goods over a large part of the country was responsible for the slow development of spring trade, but the retarded distribution of goods has been largely to severe competition between domestic manufacturers, and conspicuous progress in manufacture of fast dyes, many such dyes being produced in 1925 for the first time in the United States.

1925 Dye Production Shows Big Increase

(By the Associated Press.)
An approximate 25 per cent increase in American dye production in 1925 over 1924 was revealed yesterday in preliminary figures compiled by the Federal tariff commission. Production totaled $6,000,000 pounds, valued at $40,000,000, compared with $4,000,000 pounds valued at $26,000,000 in 1924.

Outstanding features of the year, the commission said, were continued recessions in dye prices due largely to severe competition between domestic manufacturers, and conspicuous progress in manufacture of fast dyes, many such dyes being produced in 1925 for the first time in the United States.

Foot of Snow Falls In Shenandoah Valley

Special to The Washington Post.
Harrisonburg, Va., April 18.—Winter still reigns in the mid-Shenandoah valley. The country-side tonight is blanketed with snow nearly 1 foot in depth—an almost unprecedented fall for this late in the year. The snow began falling shortly after midnight and continued almost unabated throughout today.

While the heavy snow is playing havoc with tree limbs and telephone and telegraph lines, automobile traffic is little affected as the snow rapidly melts off the main highways. In addition to the breaking of tree limbs, orchardists are fearful of a freeze which would prove disastrous to the 1926 crop.

EXPLORER HUSBAND IS SUED BY FORMER BEAUTY OF 'FOLLIES'

Her Easter Meal a Sandwich,
While He Paraded in High Hat, Says Mrs. Taylor.

HE ONCE ACCOMPANIED ROOSEVELT TO AFRICA

Brought Two Children From Previous Marriage to Her, Wife Says.

Special to The Washington Post.
New York, April 18.—"And when Easter Sunday came, my husband left me munching a bologna sandwich in our furnished room while he paraded in high hat and a cutaway."

Such was the story unfolded today by Mrs. Ruth Taylor, a pretty brunette who pranced about in the Ziegfeld Follies several seasons ago. She was known as Ruth Andrews in those days.

Mrs. Taylor has sued for a permanent separation, $75 a week alimony and $500 counsel fees.

The husband is William Bell Taylor, manager of the Latin-American publications, an explorer of note and a member of the National Geographic society. Married to Taylor on December 20, 1923, Mrs. Taylor was certain her life would be nothing but sunshine and roses as befits a Follies beauty. Instead:

"Both of us had been married before," said Mrs. Taylor today. "I was the wife of Frank Jerome, the dancer. And my husband had been married to Armida Gonzales, of Lima, Peru. He is the father of three children and he brought two of them to live with us."

"I loved Bill so much in those days," she sighed, "that I did everything in the world for him. I washed those kids and I clothed them."
But I soon found my husband was not a man that longed for toil.
He had always traveled in society and was a member of Theodore Roosevelt's African expedition. He seemed to this world to be really necessary. But I loved him—that explains everything.

"As the months passed things went from bad to worse. A year ago we were living in a furnished room. Once a can of beans—and I hate beans—was the only meal I would get for an entire day. And he would put on his high hat, walk out and parade Fifth avenue so other women might see his hand, some he was. Last March I left him."

"And that's my story. Follies girls are supposed to have romances that are beautiful and sweet. Take a look at mine and have a good laugh."

MAUNA LOA'S LAVA WIPES OUT VILLAGE

steam shot into the air showering
the entire region about the bay.

So far as can be learned there were no casualties. The head of the superheated flow had been hovering above the village for more than 36 hours. Last night a heavy flow from the mountain stirred the great pile of cooling slag into action, and the giant river moved forward over the village and into the ocean.

The village of Mitoli is believed safe.

Hilo, April 18 (By A. P.).—The flow of lava moving in the direction of Kahuku, was within three miles of the government road today
crackling and sizzling on an 1,800 foot front. As the molten stream rolls on, it catches momentum and is expected to reach the road by Monday.

The volcano Mauna Loa, abate with fire, presents the most spectacular show has offered in the memory of man.

Fountains, estimated to be 400
feet high leaped from three different craters last night, while three rivers of lava, zigzagging down the mountain, cast a red glow on the clouds and filled the air with maroon colored smoke.

Capped With Snow.

Mauna Loa has been an awe-inspiring sight since it began disgorging flaming mud and lava a week ago, after a period of five years of inactivity. The mountain reaches 14,675 feet into the air, and is perpetually capped with snow. It is the highest active volcano in the world. It is part of Hawaiian national park, created by Congress in 1913. The crater is called Mokuawewe.

In 1880-81, Mauna Loa belched forth a great flow of lava, that came to a stop within a half mile of this city. In 1885 the lava came within five miles of here. While many of the previous flows have been preceded by tidal waves, none has accompanied the recent phenomenon. As a part of the outburst, huge boulders crashed down the mountain side. Guards have been stationed at strategic points to warn residents of danger.

Mauna Loa has poured forth more lava during the last century than any other volcano on the globe.

Around its base is a gorgeous tropical forest, including mahogany groves, dense growths of ferns rising to a height of 40 feet, and green meadows. Sandalwood, extinct almost everywhere else, grows here luxuriantly.

Sniper Shot Dead In Dallas Suburb

Dallas, Tex., April 18 (By A. P.).
Armed with a rifle with which he was sniping at passersby in the street of a suburban section of Dallas last night, Andrew James Negro, was shot to death in a fight with police.

The negro fired several shots, but none of them struck his intended victims.

ATTRACTIONS AT THE LOCAL PLAYHOUSES

METROPOLITAN

The melancholy Harry Langdon, former beauty of the old Sennett school, is capering before a con-vulsed public at the Metropolitan this week in his first feature length
comedy, "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp."
"Tramp, Tramp, Tramp" is not,
as might be supposed from the title,
a hobo picture. Rather it reveals Langdon as the son of a smug shoemaker on the verge of bankruptcy, because of the competition offered by larger manufacturing plants. In a surprising manner Langdon enters a transcendental walking race promoted by a big shoe manufacturing concern. Previous to his entry it is revealed that he has a tender passion for a young lady displayed on billboards advertising Burton shoes. It is singular, therefore, that the lady turns out to be none other than the daughter of the big shoe man whose firm is promoting the race—and it is more than singular that Harry Langdon manages to outwit the best runners of the country and win the $25,000
—and the girl.

The picture is somewhat slow in pace. It does not contain quite the sure-fire comedy of Langdon's less pretentious two-reelers.

Warner's Pennsylvanians are beginning their third week of their present engagement at the Metropolitan. Their offering this week contains a melange of melody.

A new Helen and Warren comedy entitled "Moving Day" is on the bill. The new release is interesting and it offers exclusive views of the flower of the Greek army.

KEITH'S

In discussing the current bill at Keith's this week, superlatives must be used to do it justice. There is not a dull moment in the entire show. Getting off to a good start, it gathers momentum as it goes along.

Nora Bayes is headliner and that statement alone should insure the worthwhileness of a visit to any Washingtonian. Miss Bayes sings a cycle of songs in her inimitable manner, gives a delightful little chat on her personal affairs and,
just to show that she is up with the times, goes through a few steps of the Charleston in her last number.

Wally Sharples, with a large company, has an original tidbit called "Little Twinkle." The little show brimms with chuckles and the ingraining and as a finale a burlesque is given on grand opera that went over well.

George Yeoman and Lizzie call the bill "Information." It abounds in wise cracks and keen observations and easily lives up to its billing as being just a wee bit different.

The bill is opened by Mabel Nay-son with a remarkable bird act.
Dan Stanley and Al Birnes, two eccentric dancers, give a song and some clever steps. Duci De Kerek-jarto gave a miniature violin recital and was recalled repeatedly.

Jack Benny opened up the latter half of the bill with his own brand of humor and is as funny as ever. Although he was minus his well-known violin to begin with, he managed to borrow one before the act terminated. The bill was brought to a close by the three Freelands, who thrilled the audience with their aerial stunts. The program also included the usual house subsidaries.

EARLE

The Great Nicola—sahib of Persia and high priest of magic—is at the Earle this week mystifying those who attend. His tricks—all of them new to those who haven't seen Thurston and Houdini—are as convincing as one may expect. He does the famous quick-change-trunk act and likewise that blood-curdl-ing manipulation of spikes passing through a charming young lady without apparent hurt.

Nicola is the headliner, but it's a toss up as to who the real stars
are. "Certain" is a serio-comic playlet "An Evening From Life" is worthy of the added attraction place on the list. Clair Vincent does the part of the neglected wife in a convincing manner—and Frank Gardner and Blanche Lord do well in support.

Marie Walsh and Frank Ellis are good in a skit entitled "The Yes Boy and No Girl." There is a skit of the breezy variety topped with some chatter, a bit of dancing and singing.

Buddah Doyle, that famous blackface boy who essays the soulful songs of Jolsonian touch, is on the bill—the green smoke and everything. His chatter goes across, but some of his songs were not very hot.

Julius Howard and Marcelle, who claims to come from gay Paris, outdo a bit of nonsense booked as "Songs, Steps and Stories," in which the honors break nearly even. Julius, who doesn't look the part, is extremely clever in his offering toward the success of the skit.

Grace Ayer and Billy do a roller-skating act to open the bill in the approved style. They're good, as acrobatic novelties go.

The feature picture on the bill
this week is one of the great outdoors—a romance of the railroads and the wilds known as "Whispering Smith." It is a regular he-Westerner where the men, shoot not murdering each other, shoot dark looks toward strangers and slouch around in the true Cheyenne manner. Henry B. Walthall takes the title role. He is ably supported by Lillian Rich, John Bowers and Lillian Tashman. It's a good movie of the Grey type.

Capital Symphony Concert Tomorrow

The newly formed Washington Symphony orchestra will be heard tomorrow for the first time, in concert at Poli's theater, at 4:30 o'clock, under the direction of Kurt Heinz. The orchestra numbers 80 picked musicians of the city.

Richard Bonelli, barytone with the Chicago Opera company, who recently appeared here in the role of Rigoletto, will be the soloist.
Mrs. Wilton-Greene, in charge of the sale of tickets, states that the outlook is for a capacity house.

"Princess Flavia" a Hit In Its Washington Debut

That old mythical kingdom of Ruritania is brought back into existence again—if only for a couple of hours—in "Princess Flavia," a musical version of Anthony Hope's story, "The Prisoner of Zenda." Newsomers to the theater need know nothing else save the fact that an Englishman, Harry Weish-man, plays the old Sothern part and does more than nobly by the role.

There is romance and adventure galore in "Zenda," done now as "Flavia." So that Harry B. Smith, who contributed the book and lyrics, had plenty of naturally to work with, and Sigmund Romberg, who composed the music, had only to maintain his usual high standard in order to keep the score where it should be. In casting and presenting the production, the Shubert hold to the cloth cut in "The Student Prince" and other stupendous productions. In the title role they have Evelyn Herbert, last seen here in "The Love Song," a soprano se-
soned and yet in the bloom of youth,
so that she is lovely to behold in royal raiment; a fair opposite for
the stalwart Harry Weishman.

Though there will naturally be comparisons made between this production and "The Student Prince,"
"Flavia" is able to stand on its own—a thing apart. As presented
here, it is colorful, rich, sumptuous,
even gorgeous. The story naturally lends itself to superb setting. It is,
as almost every one knows, the tale
of a weakling crown prince, who,
about to be crowned, is bedeviled
by his cousin, Black Michael. To save the situation, a traveler in the kingdom, who closely resembles the

prince, is pressed into service and
goes through the coronation ceremonies. It is here Harry Weishman exels. His quick changes are rather marvelous. The man is an actor as well as a singer; a successor, as some of the older timers claim, to Haydn Coffin—one of the best in
his day.

For one great moment, John Clark, who may be recalled for his work in "The Dream Girl," last
year, takes command of the stage,
singing a drinking song, "I Love
Them All." It took four encores
to appease the appetites last night,
and this number is well worth a re-
hearing any time, any place.

Romberg's music is so uniform
and consistently good that it is difficult to select any theme number,
or song, that stands out head and
shoulders over the whole score;
ordinarily the case. This adds
rather than detracts from the completeness of the whole work, one
that stands as a big attraction of the season.

An excellent supporting company
contributes to the teamwork of the featured players. William Pringle is a magnificent Gen. Sapt. John Frank plays Ruper, a soprano se-
soned and yet in the bloom of youth,
so that she is lovely to behold in
royal raiment; a fair opposite for
the stalwart Harry Weishman.

Frank plays Ruper, a soprano se-
soned and yet in the bloom of youth,
so that she is lovely to behold in
royal raiment; a fair opposite for
the stalwart Harry Weishman.

Though there will naturally be
comparisons made between this production and "The Student Prince,"
"Flavia" is able to stand on its own—a thing apart. As presented
here, it is colorful, rich, sumptuous,
even gorgeous. The story naturally
lends itself to superb setting. It is,
as almost every one knows, the tale
of a weakling crown prince, who,
about to be crowned, is bedeviled
by his cousin, Black Michael. To save the situation, a traveler in the kingdom, who closely resembles the

prince, is pressed into service and
goes through the coronation ceremonies. It is here Harry Weishman
exels. His quick changes are rather marvelous. The man is an actor as well as a singer; a successor, as
some of the older timers claim, to Haydn Coffin—one of the best in
his day.

For one great moment, John Clark, who may be recalled for his
work in "The Dream Girl," last
year, takes command of the stage,
singing a drinking song, "I Love
Them All." It took four encores
to appease the appetites last night,
and this number is well worth a re-
hearing any time, any place.

Romberg's music is so uniform
and consistently good that it is difficult to select any theme number,
or song, that stands out head and
shoulders over the whole score;
ordinarily the case. This adds
rather than detracts from the com-
pleteness of the whole work, one
that stands as a big attraction of the season.

An excellent supporting company
contributes to the teamwork of the featured players. William Pringle

PALACE

With such a cast as Lew Cody, Gertrude Olmstead, Trilzie Friganza, Zasu Pitts, Harry Myers, Karl Dane and Roy D'Arcy, there is no wonder the Palace audiences enjoyed the comical situations in which three American girls find themselves in the photoplay "Monte Carlo."
It is replete with all the extravagant splendor of the Parisian resort. The genuine humor of Lew Cody and Trilzie Friganza makes it a really funny story. But it is another one of those pictures,
so abundant recently, that jumps
the ocean after getting started on our own shores.

Three American girls, Sally Roxford (Gertrude Olmstead), Florence Payne (Trilzie Friganza) and Hope Dumont (Zasu Pitts), win a popularity contest and are sent to Monte Carlo with Bancroft of the Watertown News as master of ceremonies.
They are "royalty hunters" and get into all sorts of mix-ups. They meet Anthony Townsend (Lew Cody), an American, who unexpectedly impersonates Prince Boris, then a count and a duke (impersonated by Harry Myers and Karl Dane, respectively). Of course everything ends happily.

A fashion show "in colors" shows
the evolution of dress from Eve to the present day.

Supplementing the feature are a Mack Sennett comedy "Whispering Whiskers," which is really good, Pathe news reel and Topics of the Day.

Sandbags and Cables
Halt Wisconsin Flood

Portage, Wis., April 18 (By A.
P.).—Two massive wooden gates today successfully checked the rising waters of the Wisconsin river, and protected the Fox river valley
from a flood that was believed imminent last night, when a 75-foot section of a wooden wall in the Portage canal locks collapsed.

Hundreds of sandbags, tons of granite and of steel cables put in place Saturday night reinforced the hollow quoin in which the gates swing, providing a barrier to the rush of water in the canal, which is the sole connecting link between the Wisconsin and Fox rivers. Immediate danger apparently was past today.

With several numbers that are as good as any presented in a local playhouse this or any other season,
"Princess Flavia" is one of those productions destined to live in the memories of those fortunate enough to see and hear it. At times it rises to the heights of opera. Always it is great operetta.

JOHN J. DALY.

RIALTO

Marvelous is a mild expression to describe "The Sea Beast," which opened its second week yesterday
at the Rialto to packed houses.

It is truly a story of the sea with the actual harpooning of an immense whale, the trials of a vessel in the throes of one of the most wonderful storms yet filmed and the faithful love of a beautiful girl, who waits and waits till fate again
returns her lover to her.

As has been given in last week's review, John Barrymore has truly brought to the screen one of the most remarkable characterizations
in his history.

With his histrionic ability he has proved as great a success on the silent sheet as he previously did on the legitimate stage.

It is a true depiction of the conflicting emotions which rule a man's destinies: love, hate, despair, madness, revenge, and agony.

"The Sea Beast" is intensely interesting because it is so very different from the vast majority of present day stories.

America's greatest actor in America's greatest classic, "The Sea Beast," is a masterpiece of acting.

International News and songs by Joseph Turin and Miss Martha Parry, tenor and contralto, respectively, were the additional features.
Prof. M. Guterson's symphony orchestra in its early concert as usual was most pleasing.

By an audience by emitting roars
of laughter makes a picture funny.
Then Harold Lloyd in his latest release, "For Heaven's Sake," which opened for a week's run at Loew's Columbia yesterday afternoon, was a success.

There are many laugh-provoking situations in "For Heaven's Sake," and the picture is delightfully free of slap-sticks and pie-throwing comedy. For this reason it appeals, but it is not the best thing by far that the bespectacled comedian has produced.

The story is based on a spendthrift millionaire who unknowingly invests $1,000 in a mission in the slums. Jobyna Ralston plays the part of the missionary's daughter,
and after seeing her the millionaire decides to carry on his charities.

How he gets an audience of rowdies
for the mission services had better be seen than told.

The picture is replete with Lloydistic like narrow escapes with a comedy angle. A wild ride on a two-decker bus has enough thrills to compete with any of Ruth Roland's serials, mixed with sighs of relief and loud laughter.

The Columbia orchestra has a clever musical novelty entitled
"Horses," which is good.

Screen snapshots, news of the day and a Hal Roach "Our Gang" comedy, which is decidedly better than the feature, complete an excellent mirth-provoking entertainment.

LAUSANNE PACT IS BASE SURRENDER, SAYS BISHOP

Dr. Manning Tells Senator Borah That Armenia Is Being Betrayed.

ASKS NO ARMED FORCE

New York, April 18 (By A. P.). Holding that the Lausanne treaty, in its present form, is "a base surrender of American honor and of American rights to red-handed military despotism and a cowardly betrayal of Christian Armenia," Bishop William T. Manning, of the New York diocese, issued a formal reply today to Senator Borah's rebuke of the 110 Episcopal bishops who have protested against ratification of the treaty with Turkey.

The bishops, he said, advocate either the treaty's rejection or its ratification, subject to reservations. No treaty with Turkey is acceptable, he explained, which does not hold to the tenets in defense of Armenian rights, "as defined by the arbitration of President Wilson and as endorsed and reaffirmed by President Harding."

"I do not admit that this treaty is the best we can obtain at this time," he said. "Your letter implies that we are opposing this treaty because the Turks do not profess the Christian faith. You can not, I think, seriously suppose that this is our position. You say that to 'refuse friendly relations with all peoples who reject Christianity is unthinkable.' With this statement we, of course, agree."

"As you will see, if you reread our protest, we oppose ratification of this treaty not because the Turks are non-Christian in faith, but because of their brutal, inhuman and anti-Christian conduct toward those to whom we have given solemn pledges and whom, if this treaty is ratified we shall basely desert."

Bishop Manning said that the idea of establishing an armed force in Turkey to protect American civil and property rights had never occurred to him.

Embassy Announces Berenger Will Carry On All Negotiations for Settlement.

PERET IS NOT COMING

(By the Associated Press.)
Ambassador Berenger has full power to negotiate settlement of the French war debt to the United States, and Finance Minister Peret will not come to the United States, the French embassy announced yesterday.
Reassurance of the Ambassador's full power to negotiate the settlement was received yesterday, it was said.
"The French embassy is duly authorized by the French government," the statement said, "to deny some news published in the last few days, according to which the French finance minister, Mr. Peret, would come to the United States."
"Nothing has ever been said about it and it is out of the question."
"The French Ambassador, M. Berenger, has received from the French government full power to negotiate the settlement of the French debt."

Owensboro, Ky., April 18 (By A. P.).—Ronda Wade, 35, father of four young children is dead, and Bourbon Turner, 52, negro, is probably fatally wounded, as the result of a fight with Federal prohibition officers here. G. C. Henderson, Federal agent, and J. T. Alderson, deputy, surrendered after the shooting.
The agents had gone to Turner's home to buy liquor so they could arrest the negro. The shooting followed a scuffle which occurred when Turner was told he had just sold a half pint to a Federal agent.

San Diego, Calif., April 18 (By A. P.).—Lieut. Frank Wead, noted naval aviation pilot, who fractured his neck when he fell down stairs of his new home in Coronado last week, is in a precarious condition at the Balboa Park naval hospital.

CHAMBER CONVENTION TO HAVE MANY TOPICS

Member Bodies Submit Variety of Items for Discussion of Organization.

AERONAUTICS TO TAXES

A list of topics, covering a wide range of business thought from taxation to national defense, and from highway transportation to aeronautics, has been submitted by member organizations of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, for consideration of the chamber at its annual meeting, to be held in Washington, May 11 to 13.
Chief among the proposals offered for discussion of the group, is the problem of immigration, three of the 13 organizations which submitted proposals favoring this topic. Registration of aliens, whether or not they have applied for citizenship, and naturalization, have both been suggested.
The Chicago Association of Commerce offered two questions for consideration, one being that any bill, having for its purpose the appointment of members on the Interstate Commerce Commission, designated sections of the country is wrong in principle, as it would tend to weaken the commission and would be detrimental to the public interest.
The question of the sale of firearms was advanced by the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce, which requested that a study be made of crime conditions in States where their sale is prohibited.

WIVES OF TOMORROW

By FRANCES M'DONALD

The Trouble With Widowers.

SOME time ago we published in this column a plea for counsel on the subject of widowers. We receive so many letters from young girls in love with widowers, or who want to marry widowers, whether they love them or not; or who are loved by widowers; or who have been proposed to by widowers. Whether said widowers love them or not. And besides this, we had letters from girls of 22 on the brink of annexing not only a widower, but a family of four or five children, grown, half-grown, or trying to grow. It was too much for our lack of experience and as usual in such emergencies we frankly admitted our limitation and asked some of our readers who knew something about widowers to come forward and help us. They have come! About a hundred thousand strong, and they know about widowers. And if you are a widower, or likely ever to be one, read and learn something about yourself. And if you are a girl with a liking for widowers—read and learn what you will escape by not marrying one. Honestly, we never knew that widowers were such terrible things. We had always looked upon them as sort of harmless souls, going about their affairs with saddened hearts and two or three children. Not a bit of it! They are wily villains; they are selfish, unappreciative; but read for yourself. I can't tell you half so well.

"The trouble with widowers is that a widower is a man who has already been waited upon hand and foot by some menial soul, who gave up her life in the effort to give complete satisfaction as wife, mother, maid of all work, and general shock absorber for his delicate nervous system. The woman who steps in to take her place, lacking her experience and training under his deft hands, is a failure at the start. You can't make good as a widower's wife—don't try it."

"ONE WHO TRIED"

BR—rr—rr—rr: Read on:
"How can this girl of 22 expect to take on a man with a family and look forward to any happiness. My husband had three children—mere babies—when I married him, and came our own children. In seven years my friends did not know me when they met me on the street. Here I was with two small children, and I was a mother. I was a mother in motherhood came upon me. Could I hope for help from my husband? I could not. He invariably informed me that the end of the home. At last I just told him that she did while she lasted. After that we never had much use for each other, but at least I didn't have his first wife served up to me morning, noon and night. Now—after ten years—we are together only because we can't afford to live apart. I am his housekeeper—and have three children that are his. I will say

TOMORROW

By N. Brewster Morse.

TOMORROW never comes. Of course, you've heard that said before and all the other wise-cracks that have been said off 'til tomorrow that which can be done today." &c. This is all a lot of applesauce. Bob Murray will tell you that and those who know him say that Bob knows whereof he speaks.

You see, the Today for Bob happened to be the twelfth of January. It ought to have been a pretty good day for that. Bob's mother had twelve children and he was the youngest. He had been born on the twelfth day of the twelfth month. When he was twelve years old he "got over" the measles and there were twelve letters in his name. As though this was not quite enough for one number, when he was twelve (yes, little Robert, that's twenty-four) he met Gloria.

Gloria! She was the sort of girl that had to be seen to be believed. Such eyes, such lips, such "No's." The eyes and lips she had always had, together with many other pretty good recommendations which we won't go into here. The "No's" didn't come to Bob until that sad day, the same twelfth of January, which we have mentioned. It happened like this:

"I like you a lot, Gloria," Bob said to her. "That is, I mean I love you, see? How do you feel about it?" Don't you like me a little, too?"

"No!" Her reply had come in the form of a severe shock to his entire nervous system. Can't say I do, Bob. Awfully sorry."

"Aw, sure you must!" Bob was a hard man to discourage. "I'm not fooling, kid, I'm dead serious. Don't you think you and I get along pretty good together?"

"No!" Gloria laughed. "I don't like lots of things you say and lots of things you do. The reason I don't tell you is because I'm too polite. You know what I mean."

"Sure! None of us is perfect. I'll try to change the things about me that you don't like. The important thing is that I love you something awful and I want you to marry me, won't you, Gloria?"

"No!" This last "No" was the unkindest of all. "I'm sorry but I can't. Don't think I'd be happy with you and I don't much hanker for any divorces. Forget it, will you, Bob?"

"Forget it!" Bob laughed. "I can no more forget it than I can forget to eat or sleep. Gloria, I haven't thought about much else except you since I met you and I guess maybe I was too anxious and asked you too quick. I'll just drop in and call a while and ask you how you feel about it tomorrow. 'It's no use.' She smiled. 'Can't change my mind tomorrow. You ought to know that. Tomorrow never comes.'"

Tomorrow did come, however, and a lucky tomorrow it was for Bob in spite of the fact that the calendar numbered it the thirteenth of January. True to his word, he just dropped in and called a while and asked her how she felt about it that day. Before he asked her how she felt about it, however, he had a little matter to attend to first. It seems that another gentleman had, also, just dropped in and before Bob arrived and this one was engaged in a rather ungentlemanly pastime. He was holding Gloria, who was struggling to free herself, in his strong arms and forcibly giving her unwelcome kisses. He was without doubt, also, pressing his suit (even though his methods were somewhat different from Bob's) and you can take it from us that his suit needed pressing when Bob got through with him.

It was a good fight, and one in which Robert Murray got the decision. We say got the decision because there was no knockout. It ended in the first round on account of a foul.

To make ourselves clear, we'll have to give some of the morbid details. It seems that Bob was beating the life from the ungentlemanly gentleman and things were just about all set for the count of ten, when the said ungentlemanly gent proved to be a gunman and gave Mr. Murray, as a token of his esteem and affection, a bullet in the left shoulder. This, it seems, was just before Gloria hit the gunman with the kitchen table.

Bob was laid up for quite a spell, and while Gloria was nursing him she discovered that he possessed a lot of excellent qualities, which, somehow or other, she had overlooked. As any practical man will tell you, tomorrows do come, and sometimes we find that with their arrival we change our ideas on certain important subjects.

Let it be said for Bob Murray and Gloria . . . well, as we intimated before, one look at her at any time would be sufficient to make you want to fight for her, too!

Conduct and Common Sense

Introductions—First Part.

The naming of one person to another should not be a very difficult thing to do, and would not be if people were natural about it. But there seems to be the unaccustomed introducer something vaguely disquieting in the process. He feels self-conscious. He doesn't know why. As if he were confronted by a social situation which required unusual wit and worldly wisdom to meet. But 99 out of every 100 introductions in America are simplicity itself. We grant that when people with titles, from other countries, come among us the thing is more difficult. In this country all that we have to remember is that men are introduced to women (not women to men), and the young to their elders. Too much ego on the part of the introducer is what makes him self-conscious. If he thinks only of the two people he is making known to each other, he will spare himself any embarrassment. Such a trivial occasion is not worth a single feeling of discomfort, even if the last dictates of etiquette haven't been followed.

What is the common sense of an introduction? (The word "present" is only used to indicate difference in rank.) Why, that the two people shall hear each other's names, to begin with, and be put upon a friendly footing, in addition. The first can be accomplished by pronouncing the names distinctly. The second, by making some remark which establishes their identities.

As an example: "Jack, let me introduce you to my uncle, Mr. Donald Hale. Uncle Don, you remember my telling you that I stayed with Jack Middleton when I went South last year? Well, here he is."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

TEACHER TELLS HER SIDE.

M. D. L. writes: There are two things in life which make me cross. One is to see pictured on the screen the old time, typical school teacher—cross and hateful and scaring the children to death. "There is no such person" now, I assure you.

The other time I see red is when I read a letter such as "M. C. C." writes today, blaming the school teacher for epidemics. She says a child was "allowed" to be present at school with sore throat. Occasionally a child in school may get by with sore throat, but if it is wrapped or if the child complains he is sent home at once. In nine cases out of ten we have difficulty keeping him home, as the mother usually gets mad and insists on sending the child to school.

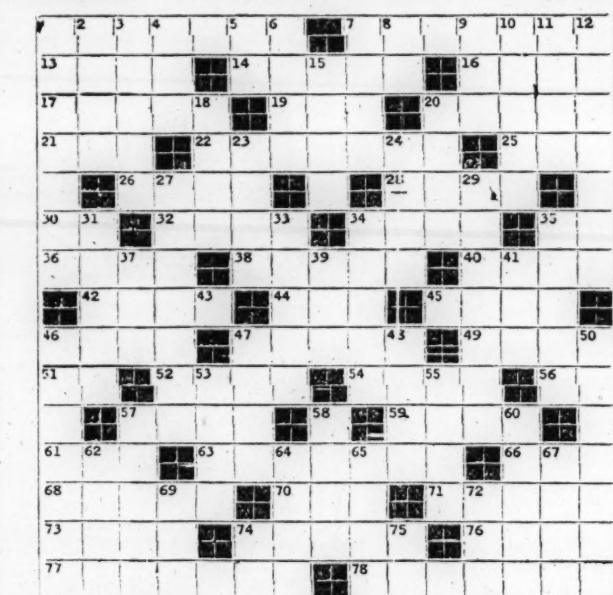

This winter nearly half my room had whooping cough. Do you know why? A little boy came to school.

He coughed until he was red in the face. I wrote a note asking his mother to keep him at home until the cough was better, as I was afraid it was whooping cough. She wrote back it wasn't whooping cough and for me to mind my own business. I sent the child to the nurse, who also sent the child home. Back he came with another impudent note. The child left the room frequently and on one occasion, I followed him and found him outside coughing with regular whoops. This time he was sent home and stayed—but the mischief had been done.

Another child came back three times before the time limit for chickenpox was over. She was sent home each time, but of course, had been with other children. We see mothers in elevators and in picture shows with children sick with whooping cough. Law? What do they care?

In heaven's name, what can the

Beauty and You

How to Keep the Lips Smooth.

A pretty mouth depends for its attractiveness on ever so much more than a pretty outline. And, fortunately for us, the other requisites are rather well within control. I have already described (a week ago) the best way to apply lip rouge. The lips should have a becoming, rosy color, and—very important—there must be soft and smooth texture.

You know how disagreeable it is when the rouge cakes and the lips have a rough, ridged look. It is in itself an uncomfortable feeling, and you are conscious that any observant person is looking a little too critically at your face. (Almost all people have a way of being more observant about our bad points than our good ones.)

Once the rouge is caked, every subsequent application simply makes it worse. So, the first thing to do is to have the lips perfectly clean and dry. If they are already chapped, they may be rubbed at night and once or twice during the day with a little mentholated salve or camphor ice.

An excellent base for lipstick or cream rouge is liquid lip rouge. It is not usually vivid enough or lasting enough to suit the average woman, but it is very good as a foundation. Because a lipstick is apt to harden, a cream rouge is rather better. This should be a soft cream, and it should be sparingly applied with the little finger-tip.

If you notice that your lip rouge is caking during the day, simply remove every particle of it and start again, using a little salve before re-rouging.

(Next week the Beauty Editor will discuss the care of the teeth.)
(Copyright, 1926, by Vogue.)

There is another good point which you have overlooked. The preschool age is the age for contagion. Children of preschool age are supposed to be kept in the home and away from other children. Therefore, they should not have much contagion. Children in schools are necessarily exposed to other children. Therefore, they should have much contagion. The fact that the preschool period is the age when contagion is most rife goes toward proving that the teacher needs her contagion problem better than the mother meets hers. No charge for the help.

FRUITS DECREASE ACIDS.
Mrs. M. A. H. writes: Having acid in my blood, I want to find out if the following list of fruits contain acid: cherries, red raspberries, apricots, pineapple, prunes, and in the vegetable line: tomatoes, sauerkraut, cabbage.

REPLY.
The foods you mention increase the store of alkali and decrease acids.

Pineapple, and perhaps prunes, are an exception to that rule.

MAY HAVE JAUNDICE.
X. Y. Z. writes:
1. Although I am never constipated, my tongue is usually coated, the whites of my eyes are yellow, and my breath is bad. After eating I notice that my mouth tastes sour. 2. I also have terrible migraine headaches. Would that cause any of these things? What would you advise?

REPLY.
1. If your eyes are yellow it is possible that you may have some form of jaundice. Has that been investigated? Bad breath may be due to intestinal fermentations that are not accompanied by constipations.

2. The answer is—yes. People with digestive disturbances frequently are migraine subjects. It is not easy to tell which is the cause and which is the effect.

Bad Weather Spoils March Of Lejeune's Child Army

Maj. Gen. John A. Lejeune, commander of the United States Marine Corps, planned yesterday to take command of an army and conduct its march. Bad weather defeated his purpose and exploded his childish dream of a child army. He was to have led as chief marshal the parade of 5,000 Sunday school children of the Episcopal diocese of Washington from the Ellipse to the Church of the Epiphany on G street. But the sharp rain which would have amounted to exposure caused only 600 children to appear for the services in the church. The parade was not held.

The march was to have been the unusual feature of the children's Lenten offering representing the churches of the diocese. In the line of march the county parishes were to be first, followed by the churches of Eastern Washington, and by those of Western Washington. The march, for which police had made provision, was to have been by way of the Pennsylvania place to Pennsylvania avenue, down the Avenue to G street and east on G street to the church.

Gen. Lejeune, who is junior warden of Epiphany church and a member of the vestry, according to plans, would have been assisted by the Rev. Larkin W. Glazebrook as staff, and the Sunday school teachers as captains. The number of the children, it was expected, should have varied with the pageantry of the sunlight and springtime.

Fully 5,000 were expected and 2,000 were counted as a minimum. Although the weather brought disappointment to a few, which would long have been remembered in local Episcopal churches, the response of the children to the offering was gratifying. Reports made by 21 parishes showed collections of more than $2,100. There are 60 parishes, and when all are heard from, the collections are expected to exceed $3,000.

The children's Lenten offering is for home and foreign missions, and is an annual event in the Episcopal churches of the country. The Rev. George F. Dudley, chairman of the field department of the executive council, newly created to take charge of the offering, talked to the children as to the purpose of the money.

Canon Anson P. Stokes, of the Washington Cathedral, made the address to the children. His subject was "missions," and his sermon was interspersed with questions to the children, which elicited an enthusiastic response.

MODISH MITZI

"Hello, Mitzi," telephones Adelaide, "I thought it would be so nice if you could run over for tea on alone, you know, and just nothing to tell you about Adelaide continues the conversation we may notice that she wears a brocaded chiffon robe, trimmed with gray fur and banded with gold lace.

A New Negligee Is a Stay-At-Home Argument

"But, Adelaide," replies Mitzi, "why not come over here? I'm just loafing." And, of course, Mitzi omits saying that she is loafing in a new negligee with a cape back which is very much trimmed with wide bands of lace. Both girls have on new negligees, which is one reason why they are inviting each other to each other's house.

By Jay V. Jay

Polly, too, has just taken a new boudoir robe out of its tissue wrappings when her phone rings. No, she's busy, she can't be tempted anywhere, she thinks it would be so much jollier if Mitzi would come over. When one has a new negligee one has to wear it. Which is why these three girls are sitting in their respective homes before their respective mirrors.

By Jay V. Jay

The Goofer is puzzled. He's been turned down by three of them. Hard luck, that! Well, if he could have seen how charming they looked in their new negligees, if he could have seen the effect, he would have wanted to have tea with them all lots more than he did. Which is saying worldly.

Bush Puzzles For Nine Innings

R. MACKENZIE AND M'LEOD BEAT HUFTY, ARMOUR

Columbia Pro Stars in 2-1 Victory

Turns in Round of 71 on Congressional Golf Course.

McCormack, Towns Win Foursome at Indian Spring.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

ROLAND MACKENZIE, amateur, and Fred McLeod, professional, both of the Columbia club, yesterday defeated Page Hufty, amateur, and Tommy Armour, professional, representing the Congressional Country club, on the latter course, the match ending on the seventeenth green, 2 and 1. Although the afternoon was uncomfortably chilly, following a snow flurry in the morning, a large gallery watched the play and was rewarded by witnessing a fine exhibition of the game.

Seventeen holes were played. Eleven were halved in par and the other six were won in birdies, four being to the credit of Mackenzie and McLeod and two being captured by Hufty and Armour. When in an eighteen-hole four-ball match only a birdie can win a hole, any golfer will know that real golf is being played. It is safe to say that no more spectacular contest has been staged in this section for many a day.

AND the laurel crown must be fastened upon the brow of Freddie McLeod. When it is remembered that it was eighteen years ago—1908—when he won the national open championship and that he will celebrate his forty-fourth birthday next Monday, it is a fact worthy of all commendation that yesterday he played the long and difficult Congressional course in 71 strokes, two under par, and was one stroke better for the round than Tommy Armour.

When on the long first hole, 620 yards, both the amateurs halved the hole in 55, while the professionals scored 68, it looked as if youth would be served. Thereafter, however, Hufty faded out of the picture and failed to help his partner on any hole. He was pressing and overwinding and plainly nervous, and his occasional long drives were the only evidence of the game of which he is capable.

Mackenzie aided McLeod with the 5 on the first hole, the Columbia professional taking three shots from off the green for a 6, and also secured a half on the eleventh hole with a par 3 when McLeod over-approached the cup and failed to hole out on his return stroke. Throughout the game Mackenzie was covering tremendous distances with his driver and brassie but he was not playing his irons with his accustomed skill nor was he putting well.

Armour deserved a lower card than 72. He was hitting a long drive and his iron shots, played with compactness, power and accuracy, were all that any professional could ask.

HIS weakness was in his putting, for he missed a putt that was less than five feet on the third green for a birdie 2, was entitled to a 3 on the eighth but the ball, after hitting the cup, failed to drop in, and he missed another comparatively easy putt for a birdie 2 on the ninth. However, he gave the gallery a thrill on the short thirteenth.

Although the match actually ended on the seventeenth green, the home hole was played in a blaze of glory. The card given the distance of the hole as 273 yards, but Mackenzie's drive was over the green and under the shadow of the clubhouse, while Armour was on the green from the tee and came within an inch of holing out in an eagle 2.

The return match will be played next Sunday on the course of the Columbia club. The cards:

McCormack, Towns 3 and 2 on each nine.

who witnessed the opening Yankee game that the "rabbit" ball is dead.

From the way the Athletics were going in Washington, Boston is slightly nearer the class to which they belong.

BASEBALL glory lives long in the mind of the real enthusiasts. This column has just received a letter from a follower of the Washington team, who is still living over that moment in 1924 when McNeely drove the ball over Lindstrom's head and brought Muddy Ruel in with the run that gave Washington the world's championship.

He is in doubt, as many others, including a majority of those in the press box were, as to the identity of the player who fielded the ball that McNeely hit into left field. The propounder of the question thinks Young was behind third base at that time.

The player who received the last batted ball in the world's series of 1924 and made no effort to throw the ball home to try and catch Ruel at the plate was Meusel. The confusion is understandable, for Young had played left field the inning before and Meusel had been switched to right, but in the twelfth and final inning the original order was restored.

The facts on the outfield in that game are as follows: The Giant outfield at the start of the game was Wilson, left field, Kelly, center field, and Young, right field. Terry was on first base. McGraw had placed his men in that way in anticipation of a left-handed pitcher in the box for Washington.

It was to break up this program that Harris started McGraw. He hoped to make McGraw take Terry out of the game. McGraw's line-up, however, until McGraw had succeeded in getting McGraw to take Terry out of the game, was as follows: McGraw, left field; Kelly, center field; Young, right field; Terry, first base; McGraw, pitcher.

As long as Ballou continues to resemble a balloon in the box Harris won't have to worry about trading him.

The New York Laughing Commission seems to be getting the laugh on Tex Rickard recently.

POST'S OFFER HAILED BY FANS

All Have Chance to Be Among 46 on Trip to World Series.

THE announcement that 46 persons will be the guests of The Washington Post at the entire 1926 world series, wherever played, was received by fans and fanettes, large and small, of this vicinity with an even greater enthusiasm than was the somewhat similar offer last spring, which resulted in the Auth's Midgets with Manager "Bill" Sanderson seeing the 1925 classic with its two trips to Pittsburgh.

This year's world's series contest, which will open May 1 and close September 10, is an enlargement and revision of the 1925 contest. Instead of limiting the contest to teams composed of players under 16 years of age, The Washington Post is putting the 1926 world series within reach of all baseball followers regardless of age or sex.

As was the case last year, a team composed of players under 16 years of age will be rewarded with the trip. A similar prize will be awarded a team composed of players more than 16 years old.

Twenty men or women, not entered in the contest with teams, and divided into three groups also will see the classic. Ten individuals will be from the District of Columbia, six from within a 25-mile radius of the Capital and outside the District, and four who live outside the 25-mile boundary.

The tabulation of votes will be published daily and Sunday in The Washington Post. Votes will be given in return for subscriptions to The Washington Post.

RANKING players of the city will head the eight teams of the District Women's Tennis league in the annual round-robin tournament, which will get under way this week.

Although Miss Frances Krucif holds the local title, the South Atlantic district of the A. U. has recently given the number 1 ranking to Louise Kelly, who will head the Liberty team, Miss Krucif, No. 2 player, will lead the Columbia Country club team.

The Capital Athletic club will be headed by a newcomer in District play, Mrs. Gussie Gilford, who is considered to be a strong player. Wardman Park club will be fortified by the presence of Mrs. Clarence Norman, Jr., in No. 1 place in its personnel. Mrs. Norman was a former District champion and has just returned to the city.

Marjory Wakeford, who is ranked as No. 3, is a player without a team, since the Racketeers disbanded, but expects to find a berth later with one of the other clubs. Delia Hyle, who holds the No. 4 District rank, will play the No. 1 position on the Mount Pleasant team, and Elizabeth Fyle, No. 5, will not appear on the courts this year as she is taking a rest from tennis.

Corrine Frazier, the No. 6 ranking player, who was formerly with the Racketeers, will head the Mid-city team, and Helen Sinclair, No. 7, will play in No. 1 position for the Departmental team. The No. 8 player, Dorothy Kingsbury, will lead the Bureau of Standards players.

GARFIELD LEAGUE OPENS.

Garfield division of the elementary school league will start its schedule tomorrow with a game between the teams of Van Ness and Smallwood-Bowen schools. All games in the schedule will be played on the Garfield playground at Second street and Virginia avenue southeast and will start at 3:45 p. m. on the days scheduled.

The complete schedule for the five competing schools as announced by Miss Maude Parker, of the Municipal playground department, is as follows:

WORKSHOP GROUP MEETS.

DEVITT PREPARATORY SCHOOL'S SENSATIONAL RELAY TEAM IS NOW IN THE WEST WHERE IT WILL make a bid for national scholastic championship in the Drake relays at Des Moines, Iowa, on Saturday. Running in the University of Kansas games last Saturday, the Devitt four established a new meet record in winning the mile event in 3 minutes 30.8 seconds. Pictured below are four of the five athletes on the trip: (Left to right), F. J. Zack, W. Palmer, John Carney and Gordon Clark. Shoter is the other member of the team. He ran in Zack's place at Kansas.

3 Georgetown Relay Teams TIME TRIALS TOMORROW To Make Strong Bids at Penn

By JUNO KINERK.

THAT Georgetown will make every effort in its power again to produce three champion relay teams for the annual Penn relay games, which will be held in Philadelphia Friday and Saturday, is assured by the announcement from Coach O'Reilly that he is not yet satisfied with his runners and will hold final time trials for places on the different teams today and tomorrow.

Even the crack 1-mile quartet is not immune from a last minute shake-up and it is possible that a new combination may be selected after the trials. At present Gegan, Swinburne, Burgess and Ascher compose the team, but Franklin McClain and Capt. Ray Hays are out in Philadelphia Friday and Saturday, and will make the quartet if possible and may earn the open position, generally considered the one now occupied by Gegan, by a speedy record in the trials.

IN addition to the 1-mile team, Coach O'Reilly also will have a quarter-mile team, a half-mile team and a sprint medley team. The sprint medley team, which may also have a 4-mile team in the field, as well as a distance medley four.

Positions on these teams are open to the men making the best times and their personnel will not be known until tomorrow night after the final trials.

Last year the Blue and Gray won the 1-mile, 2-mile and sprint medley relays. However, the team that won the 2-mile last year and set the world's record has graduated and three of its members and O'Reilly will not have a quartet in that event this year.

Eddie Swinburne is the only surviving member of that famous 2-mile team of Sullivan, Swinburne, Holden and Marsters, and Eddie now is a member of the 1-mile four. His strong running has been a big factor in its success, not only in the indoor season but also in the recent outdoor meets in Texas.

While the local 1-mile team will try to make a mark, the year it will have to step all the way to preserve its 1925 championship. Against it will be arrayed some of the best teams in the country, including Iowa, which broke even with the local four in Texas, Yale, Syracuse, Holy Cross, Cornell and others.

BESIDES the relay events, Tony Plasky will participate in the decathlon; Emerson Norton, although not in the best of shape, may appear in the high jump and pole vault; Bill Dowling will enter the broad jump, and Capt. Hass undoubtedly will enter the hurdle races.

All told, in the meet this year there will be 97 events, in which an army of more than 3,000 athletes from all parts of the country will participate as representatives of 500 different colleges, high schools and academies.

Pioneers to Roll First Box in 1926 Title Tournament.

AT 7:30 o'clock tonight twelve past presidents and other officials of the Washington City Duckypin association will start the ball rolling on the Coliseum alleys in opening the sixteenth annual tournament that body has held here.

Immediately following the rolling of the initial box by these pioneers of the duckpin game in the National Capital, the championship activities will start with twelve clubs from the Masonic league facing the maples. As this squad finishes up about 9:30, a second set of twelve teams from Washington's largest bowling circuit will try their hand at the art of spilling the maples.

With every indication for record-breaking scores due to the big gain in the class A entries exceptional interest is expected on the part of the spectators and bowlers who will crowd the drives each night for the next month.

National Reform League Opposed to Suspending Personnel Laws for 2 Years.

PASSAGE IS REGARDED AS SERIOUS CALAMITY

Bill Would Give President Free Hand to Clean Out the Departments.

The National Civil Service Reform league will not give its support to the Davey bill suspending civil service laws for a period of two years and giving President Coolidge authority to make such changes as he may see fit in the organization of government bureaus and departments.

According to a statement made public from headquarters of the league, H. W. Marsh, its secretary, said, "In correspondence with Mr. Davey, I stated that his purpose to rid the Federal service of the loafers and the inefficient ones and the unnecessary employees was a laudable one, but I also stated in unequivocal terms that the league will not support a movement which would give to an appointing authority a free hand without any restriction as to the merit and fitness of applicants in the selection of new appointees."

Mr. Marsh added that the league would regard the passage of the bill of Representative Davey, of Ohio, as "a serious calamity," explaining that however strong might be the desire of the President to withstand the importunities of those seeking special favors, they could not fail to be embarrassed and handicapped in taking any effective measures under the plan proposed by Mr. Davey.

The league, Mr. Marsh said, did not believe that Mr. Davey could secure the passage of his bill at this or any other session of Congress in its present form. If he did so, he added, it would be over the league's most vigorous opposition.

ATTACK ON FENNING EXPECTED TO GROW WITH WIDER SCOPE

Full Attendance Looked For at Meeting of House Veterans' Committee.

G. O. P. VIEW BIASED, DEMOCRATS ASSERT

Charges Against Commissioner Simmer Down to Political Battle.

The fight on Commissioner Fenning at the Capitol will be intensified this week with the probability that it will widen in scope.

A full attendance is expected this morning at the meeting of the House veterans' committee in response to telegraphic notices sent by Representative Royal Johnson, chairman. It is the plan of the Republicans to proceed with an inquiry into the local guardianship practice, as it voted Thursday, but a party fight is expected to develop when the Republicans seek to prevent any investigation of Fenning.

Vice Chairman Luce and Representative Montgomery, of Oklahoma, Republicans who alternated in blocking the investigation Friday and Saturday, contend that an investigation of Fenning will serve no purpose and that the committee had better assume that the charges are true and recommend legislation accordingly.

Influence Charged. The Democrats, on the other hand, charge that the Republican view is influenced by the fact that Fenning is a Republican. Representative Rankin, of Mississippi, who has been active in pressing the minority fight, has told the committee that it is certainly its duty to act against a man who has taken advantage of veterans.

Representative Gibson (Republican), of Vermont, is in a peculiar position. He not only precipitated the attack on Fenning when he introduced a "certain commissioner here has made several thousand dollars as guardian for war veterans," but followed it up with a resolution for an investigation both in the veterans' committee and the House District committee. Mr. Gibson also sought to have the House managers authorize a committee investigation with power to subpoena witnesses.

In view of the attitude of his colleagues on the veterans' committee, Mr. Gibson has expressed a willingness that its inquiry should be in the nature of a hearing on proposed legislation, hopeful that the charges against Fenning may be proven or disproven before the District committee. Mr. Gibson is conservative in speech and manner, but he is not prepared to view the charges with the same equanimity which his colleagues express.

Believes in Investigation

Chairman Madden, of the House appropriations committee, is another Republican, who measures his utterances, but who has said that he believes there should be a full investigation.

Aside from these two, the matter seems to have resolved into a determined fight by the Democrats to beat down the stubbornness of the Republicans. The attitude of the latter, instead of dissipating the attack on Mr. Fenning, has served to strengthen it.

The decision of the District committee to investigate the commissioner with a subcommittee of five has intensified the attack rather than abated it. Chairman Zihlman expects to name this subcommittee today, but it is doubtful that Fenning's opponents will recognize it. Naming of the subcommittee is expected to cause them to reveal another plan which they have.

WEALTHY OIL MAN'S BODY NOT YET FOUND

Ramage Is Believed to Have Leaped From Steamer After Leaving Washington.

Norfolk, Va., April 18 (By A. P.). Careful search of the waters in the vicinity of where he disappeared failed today to locate the body of Alfred H. Ramage, wealthy oil man, of Joplin, Mo., who is believed to have leaped to his death from the steamer Northland in Chesapeake bay early Saturday morning while en route from Washington to Old Point Comfort. Norfolk police, who were called into the case when the steamer docked here at the end of her run, said after their investigation that they were convinced Ramage had ended his life by drowning and that he had not accidentally fallen overboard.

Ramage, who was unmarried, was en route to visit his parents at their winter home in Pinehurst, N. C. Ramage was missed when a steward went to call him to prepare to leave the steamer at Old Point.

The fact that $3,000 worth of unregistered Liberty bonds, a valuable watch and $84.99 in cash were found in his room along with a note to John H. Copelli, an associate of his in business, at 608 Frisco building, Joplin, caused detectives assigned to the case to suspect the theory that he had met foul play.

CONVENTION BUREAU BRINGS 62,324 HERE IN 11-MONTH WORK

Business Value of Visitors Is Estimated at $3,051,970, Director LaVigne Reports.

$14,764 EXPENDED; COMPETITION IS KEEN

125 National Organizations Are Considering Coming to Washington for Sessions.

During its first eleven months, the Washington convention bureau, with a total expenditure of $14,764, has played a full part in bringing 62,324 visitors to Washington, with a total business value amounting to $3,051,970. C. E. LaVigne, director, declared in his report to the board of governors, made public yesterday, "Of this sum," Mr. LaVigne said, "$1,355,970 represents expenditures of 27,599 convention visitors handled through the convention bureau since its organization and $1,696,000 represents estimated expenditures of 34,725 convention visitors booked for the near future.

Service Important. "Service to conventions" while meeting in the city," he continued, "is equally important for obtaining future business as the work of getting the convention in the first place. Organizations select convention cities by the measure of the facilities to meet requirements rather than by the measure of attractions and entertainment.

"The bureau is in contact today with 122 national organizations invited to come to Washington. Communications from the officials of these organizations indicate that at least 125 are considering Washington as their next meeting place."

"The large return on the small investment already shown by the bureau report," Mr. LaVigne concluded, "does not take into consideration the further value of the extensive direct advertising of Washington and its business interests resulting from the bureau activity."

In that connection, the director reminded the board of governors that convention visitors to Washington were the most immediate potential prospects for permanent residents.

36 VANISHING CHICKS LEAD TO 9 ARRESTS

Police Hear Squawks on Conduit Road and Find Fowls in Standing Auto.

The disappearance of 36 chickens from local poultry roosts, led yesterday to the arrest of five boys and four men. Depredations of the boys, police say, have extended over a period of two months.

Attracted by loud squawks from an automobile on Conduit road, Police men C. C. Brown and J. J. De Palma, of the Fourteenth precinct, investigated and found six chickens, two of which had been killed, said to be the property of James Ready, 4335 Conduit road.

Ten charges of petit larceny were lodged against the five boys, all colored, whose ages range from 13 to 15 years old.

The men, against whom charges of housebreaking are lodged, are William Askins, 37, 4715 Conduit road; Holbrook Stanbaugh, 21, 4720 Reservoir street northwest; Fred Beach, 37, 3805 Canal road; and John H. Gale, J. W. Nigh, Judge Lawrence Becker, Edwin Evans, and Charles W. Pafflow. Thomas B. Eckloff, president of the league, presided.

1,000 Newspapers and Hundreds of Magazines Carry News to Every Corner.

The present political war in China is merely the surface motion of a great nationalist movement which is slowly waking the "sleeping giant," the Rev. James M. Yard, representing the West China Union university, told the congregation of the Hamline M. E. church, Sixteenth and Allison streets northwest, at the services last night.

"This shifting contest is merely like men working with pickaxes on a slow moving glacier," Mr. Yard said. He added that "this glacier is a renaissance and development of a national spirit which is the greatest movement of the mind of man the world has seen in 500 years." He continued:

"America has before it the greatest opportunity ever given any nation, and that opportunity is to take the lead in helping China in her struggles, rather than waiting for some other nation to act. Men with vision are needed in this task—men who can foresee for 100 years."

"In 100 years China and America will be the two greatest nations on earth, and then the fruition of wise action now will be found immensely valuable."

American Club Finest

"The American club in Shanghai is the finest in Asia. It would be impossible for the most prominent Chinese to walk across the lawn of that club. The American parks in Shanghai have signs which state 'dogs and Chinese not allowed.'"

Prominent persons in China say they forgive our concessions to the commercial interests, but the haughtiness of the white man rankles in their hearts like poison."

There are now 1,000 newspapers in China, Mr. Yard said, that reach into the most remote sections. There are several hundred magazines. A few years ago, he said, there were only ten newspapers in China.

The growth of newspapers has been attended by a decrease in illiteracy, spread of education, a general rejection of the old classical language and adoption of the present-day Chinese language, Mr. Yard declared.

Baptist Calls Liquor Traffic Never Legal

Liquor traffickers have always been violators of the law, the Rev. A. J. Barton, of Kansas City, Mo., superintendent of Baptist missions in Missouri and chairman of the Baptist committee on social service, told the congregation of the Fifth Baptist church last night.

Dr. Barton said that the prohibition law had not made any criminals but had merely revealed them, and that people favoring legalized liquor sales did not expect to gain any modification of the Volstead act at present, but were merely trying to create a movement to place a few more wet congressmen in office.

Dr. Barton will appear before the Senate investigation tomorrow as the representative of the Southern Baptist convention.

Fraternity Hears Insurance Adviser

James O. Porter, marine insurance adviser to the United States Shipping Board, was the principal speaker last night at the seventh annual dinner of Kappa Alpha Phi fraternity of Georgetown university school of foreign service, held at the Lee house. He traced the development of foreign trade and explained the workings of the four branches of marine commerce.

Other speakers were James Brown Scott, professor of international law; William F. Notz, dean of the school of foreign service; and James Dulligan, national counselor of the fraternity, who was toastmaster. Edmund F. Bemis was chairman of the committee in charge of the banquet.

14 Years as Pastor, Swem Plans Future

"Ages of Kindness" was the subject of the sermon Rev. E. Hez Swem delivered last night at the Centennial Baptist church on the fourteenth anniversary of his coming to the church. In his sermon, rather than discuss the past he elected to make plans for the future, after thanking the congregation for the fourteen happy and profitable years he had spent with them.

Since Dr. Swem's coming the church has been enlarged, with an auditorium and a pipe organ installed, and is absolutely free from debt. Rev. J. R. Saunders, of South China, preached at the morning service.
